The Spectator Notes..

Jammed to the chandeliers, the Arts Ball last Saturday at the Lodge was a highly colorful affair. Most of the costumes were serious...and brief, not many of the usual funny outfits usually seen at costume balls. The crowd was a singularly wet one...the bar did a booming business, and the attitude was one of mirth and hilarity. The slightly too ambitious pageant was more or less an anticlimax. The audience was in no mood for such goings on by the time they finally loosed the drama, and the tone of the thing was so unlikely that even the cast members broke into giggles.

Most of the men contented themselves with adding a red jewelled turban to their dinner jacket outfits, and most of the women bared their rib sections. Marge Cain made history with a jewelled navel, and Terry Eby quite outdid everyone with a giant headdress that resembled a chiffon leaved tree. Several faces and bodies were painted blue or green, and many folks had pasted sequins here and there.

Jackie Leonard was The Spectator's choice for the most authentic costume, a genuine dancing girl's garb that with Mrs. Leonard's dark coloring was perfect.

The evening lasted on and on...and altogether a thousand people were tabbed through the doors, some at one time, some at another, never all at once. The Art Association was amazed. Seems people had come for the weekend and decided to drop by. A goodly number of tourists wrapped hostelry towels around their heads in the spirit of the evening, and came along with what they had with them.

We wonder if all of those box holders who spent the evening wondering where their boxes were have found them yet?

Those with courtside seats on Sunday at the Kramer-Budge match had a first hand demonstration of clean living. Whenever Kramer fluffed a shot, a look of extreme exasperation would cross his face and he'd blaspheme, "Goll-e-e-e," or, if he was really annoyed, "Jeepers!" He and Budge both showed extraordinary courtesy to the ball boys and girls, and Kramer patted the backside of the net boys gently with his racquet on the every other game switch-around. All in all, a more genial and likeable pair would be hard to imagine.

Ring around the rosy will be played in the Carmel business section come spring. Bishopp-Kneedler will move in between De Aldersheim and Little-Tanous, while Fairy Frocks will expand into the former B-K store. They'll keep their Pebble Beach store, incidentally. June Simpson is in the midst of a great building operation, three stores big, next to the Gardener's Friend, on Mission & 5th. It's rumored that one place will sell Simpson prepared foods, another may be a tea shop, and the third is anybody's guess.

A sign of the times! Francis Whitaker had just taken out his nomination papers for the city council. He went back to his Forge in the Forest to work. He knew that soon the word would be out and that someone would soon stop by to offer some advice or opinions. Soon he had the expected first visitor. A matchfolder salesman.

Overheard in a Carmel coffee shop last Friday. Young man: "I just can't think of anything to wear to the Arts Ball. I may go as a crystal ball." Sweet young thing: "Fine. Your head is perfect for it."

Carmel Policeman Andy Del Monte is going back on the job tomorrow. Andy has been out for the past few weeks after undergoing a minor operation. However, he will not be on the three-wheeler right away. He will be radio operator in the office.

The model of the Church of the Wayfarer in the Bank of Carmel is attracting quite a bit of attention. Made by Bert Marshall of Carmel, it shows how the church will look when the master plan is completed. Very attractive. --the spectator

SCHOOL BOARD CANDIDATE

The first candidate for the vacancy on the Carmel school board is Mrs. Howard Clark. The election is May 16 to fill the seat of Mrs. Martha Moller whose term expires and who is not going to run again.

A past president of the Carmel PTA, with a daughter in high school, Mrs. Clark feels that if she is going to serve, now is a good time. She added, "I have bben think-

She added, "I have been thinking about running for the board for some time."

FLOURIDATION SEE-SAW

The Carmel city council thought it had thrown out a hot potato, fluoridation, but now it is right back in the members' laps. It was neatly tossed back by the county board of supervisors.

Now the council, at its March 5 meeting, will have to consider a resolution requesting the supervisors to call for a Peninsula-wide election to fluoridate the water.

When the matter first came up, the council decided it could take no action on the matter because it had no jurisdiction over the water supply. At a subsequent meeting, the body decided to notify the supervisors of the interest "pro and con" in fluoridation in Carmel.

The supervisors answered that the Carmel council must pass a resolution requesting a Peninsula-wide election on the matter. Other Peninsula communities will presumably have to do the same thing.

REQUEST FOR ADVICE

The Carmel school board is asking the advice of the citizenry on the question of teacher tenure. Tenure is due to be established here next year, the schools having the required number of pupils.

The request for advice is contained in a letter from the board outlining academic tenure. Basically, tenure protects a teacher from being fired except for certain defined causes.

THE CANDIDATES

Now all the candidates for Carmel's city council seats have filed. Six are in the race for three vacant seats. The election is April 8. The candidates are as follows:

ALLEN KNIGHT: Incumbent mayor who has served two full terms (eight years) on the council. Knight is a real estate man with offices in Monterey.

GENE RICKETTS: Incumbent who was elected to the council in 1948. Ricketts is at present associated with Hudleson and Meyers, plumbing contractors.

REED POLLACK: Insurance agent.

FRANCIS WHITAKER: Proprietor of the Forge in the Forest. Whitaker has long been active in the Point Lobos League and has been a principal leader in the drive for the public acquisition of the beaches at the mouth of the Carmel River.

HORACE D. LYON: Insurance agent. Lyon has long been active in county planning commission matters as they concern this area.

JUST SO IT'S WHISKEY

A thief with non-definite tastes victimized Mark Thomas' Hearthstone on Ocean avenue. The robber took $150 in cash and both a bottle of scotch and a bottle of bourbon.

FAST-MOVING CON MAN NABBED BY VILLAGER

Will R. Campbell cut quite a swath in Carmel over the past few days. It must have been fun while it lasted, but now the fast-talking gentleman is on his way to the Los Angeles jail.

It started with a weekend at Del Monte Lodge. He stayed there, cashing a few checks for spending money. Saturday night he attended the Arts Ball, masquerading as a San Francisco newspaperman. There he "donated" $100 to the Art Association because he liked the show.

Lacking anything better to do this week, Campbell went shopping. He bought a top coat at Ed Williams' store in Monterey, passing a $100 rubber check. Then he journeyed over the hill to Carmel.

Another top coat was in order. This he bought with a $100 check Wednesday afternoon at Derek Rayne's store. But Derek was a bit suspicious. Campbell's story to Rayne, that he was a government agent, did not jibe with the stories he gave at the Lodge, Rayne found out by telephoning.

The chase was on. The man looked like he might need a drink, so Derek and his brother Clive went looking. Clive found him in Whitney's. Clive then got to a telephone and notified Carmel police. But by the time he returned, the bird had flown.

In the meantime, Derek, coming out of the Pine Inn, spotted Campbell coming down Ocean avenue. Campbell saw Derek and then must have thought the whole store was after him. He turned down Monte Verde.

Derek and Clive then stationed themselves on Ocean avenue, expecting Campbell to double back. He did. Clive spotted him, he spotted Clive--then disappeared into the House of Cathay.

There the two pursuers caught up with the pursued. They marched him down to where his car (rented) was parked on Ocean avenue and retrieved the coat. Carmel police then took him in custody and over to Monterey where he awaited the Los Angeles police.

They wanted him on a bad check charge.

CARMEL BOYS NOMINATED

Two Carmel youths have received nominations to West Point and Annapolis. Conrad Ege and Roderick Dresser, both 18 and graduates of Carmel High School in 1951, earned the nominations through competitive examinations.

Ege and Dresser will take entrance examinations next

ZENAS POTTER IN ONE-MAN SHOW

Sunday night, March 2, will be open house at the Carmel Art Association Galleries on Dolores street in Carmel, for the start of Zenas Potter's one-man exhibition of European paintings. The galleries will open at 7 p.m., and at 8 p.m. Mr. Potter will give a talk on "Painting Through Europe."

On display in the exhibition will be a selection of paintings from one-man shows held in Florence, Italy, in 1950, and in Nice, France, in 1951, supplemented by paintings done later in France, Switzerland, and Belgium. Of great variety, there will be several canvases done in Italy, two in Switzerland, three in Belgium, and about a dozen from France.

As is characteristic of Zenas Potter's work, several styles will be represented. The green toned Place du Chateau, painted in Cagnes-sur-Mer, and mentioned favorably by the critics, is done in a free treatment on a toned background. So is the painting of Notre Dame, from the Left Bank. On the other hand, paintings of the Beguinage in Bruges (a little village of nuns) with stark black trees against white houses, and a painting of a row of low houses, in Brittany, are decidedly modern. Other paintings are more conventional in treatment, including several canvases done on a tour, last summer, of the fishing villages of the French Mediterranean and of Brittany.

Zenas Potter's talk will, in effect, be a travelogue from a painter's point of view. Potter and his wife, Miriam Clark Potter, the well-known writer of children's books, spent two and a half years in Europe, driving their own car some 32,000 miles, from the English to Sicily. As much as possible they tried to stay off the beaten paths of tourist travel, and several of the Potter canvases show scenes seldom painted. All but one of the canvases exhibited are landscapes. The one exception is of the red tile stove and a green Italian chair, in the artist's studio in Fiesole.

After the talk, at 8 o'clock, refreshments will be served under the direction of Mrs. Katherine Aurner, chairman of the entertainment committee.

FIRST WORD ON BACH FESTIVAL

Yearly there comes a time when Carmel rings with jolly fugues and disciplined counterpoint, the voices and instruments of many people blended to reproduce the music of Johann Sebastian Bach. This year, the fifteenth of the Bach festivals, will take place on July 14 through the 20th. From a humble beginning the festival has grown to become one of the nation's marked musical events drawing audiences and artists from across the country, at once marking Carmel with distinction and giving pleasure to hundreds.

A large part has always been played by Gaston Usigli, the Venetian conductor who has with the temperament of an artist, molded professional and amateur talent into a harmonious, first rate performance. Mr. Usigli will again appear this year...and equally important, will guide the rehearsals.

The first rehearsal of the chorus is called for next Tuesday, in the Kindergarten Room of Sunset. All former members of the choir are asked to be present and to bring with them their copies of the B Minor Mass.

Angie Machado, who will assist Mr. Usigli throughout the festival, will be present at the first rehearsal to record members and will then carry on rehearsals on alternate weeks. Anyone singing soprano, tenor, alto, or base is offered an opportunity to appear in the festival...a chance to participate in a truly distinguished musical event. Inquiries may be made by calling Angie Machado at 7-4166. Rehearsals are under the auspices of the Carmel School of Adult Education.

YOUTH CENTER FOLLIES REHEARSALS UNDER WAY

A glee club of over 60 young people has begun rehearsals for the Carmel Youth Center Follies, planned for April 25 and 26. Places are still open in the chorus, and will be until March 8.

Under the direction of Miss Joanne Nix, the dancing chorus began rehearsals on Wednesday. Both boys and girls will be in the dances, the choreography of which will be by Miss Nix, who says that this year's show will contain much more dancing than last year's.

A review type show, the script for the follies was forwarded from Hollywood by Bing Crosby, one of the center's outstanding benefactors. Crosby maintains an active interest in the center.

Auditions for the show will close on the 8th and anyone wanting to contribute an act is urged to contact Jack or Bonnie Giles, the directors of the center, before that date.

MONTEREY COUNTY SYMPHONY

The Monterey County Symphony, which gave its second concert of the year last Friday under the direction of Clifford Anderson, is an orchestra in which we can all take pride.

A highly varied program, chosen with a view toward its popular appeal as well as the limitations of the orchestra, revealed a gratifying proficiency.

Brahms' "Academic Festival Overture," which opened the program, was a highly successful rendition which captured the essential esprit of this happy music with no sacrifice of its strength. This was followed by Bach's Prelude and Choral, as arranged by Abert, perhaps the least well executed piece of the evening in that it suffered from a too tentative attack which obscured the melodic line.

The major work on the program, Schubert's "Unfinished Symphony," received a warm and sympathetic rendering with the strings doing full justice to its lovely melodies.

Following the intermission, the orchestra played Sibelius' "Swan of Tuonela," with Melvin Buffo providing outstanding solo work on the English horn. The unearthly beauty of the orchestral sound Mr. Anderson drew forth in this selection left this listener hoping future programs would include other works of this type, perhaps some Debussy, Ravel, or early Schoenberg.

Three groups of strongly nationalistic dance music completed the program. Alexander Borodin's "Polovetski Dances" generated high excitement with their abandoned rhythms and soaring climaxes. These were followed by Manuel DeFalla's "Three-Cornered Hat Suite" with its vivacious Spanish tempos. The concluding work was the "Rosenkavalier" waltz of Richard Strauss, wherein the orchestra's admirable string section again shone.

The audience, which most regrettably did not begin to fill Sunset Auditorium, was extremely enthusiastic in their reception. Numbered among the listeners were many children and one is additionally grateful on their behalf to this volunteer group for making live performances available here. While recorded music and radio concerts may offer more exacting execution, they cannot replace the thrill of actual performances in the development of an appreciation of music.

The obvious sincerity and hard work evidenced by this concert bespeak a bright future for the orchestra and mark it worthy of far, far better support than it received last week.

"FROM RAGS TO RICHES"

To create an atmosphere within the theater of spontaneous, unaffected good fun is a difficult thing to do, but the Troupers of the Gold Coast succeed in doing just that with their current show at the First Theatre. "From Rags to Riches" is an old melodrama, revised and adapted by Irene Alexander, who has done a deft job of ribbing the weary old lines, and lampooning the all too explicit declarations of virtue. One line that caught this reviewer's ear, "... whilst I call a cop," pretty well illustrates her talent for outrageous contrast...a thing that can be very funny indeed if well delivered.

Delivery, in this production, is well nigh perfect. Janet Call, who is the happy possessor of two of the biggest and most mobile brown eyes in existence, plays the virtuous Flossie to a faretheewell, defending her virtue and appealing to heaven for guidance with the dead-pan sincerity of an ingratiating comic. She gets some expert help from Melvin Isenberger and James Rutledge, who overplay with wild abandon, and add to the generally happy effect. Rutledge plays Ned Nimble, an impossibly dandy young fellow whose quickness and virtue are only outdone by his indefatigable way of declaiming them. Dan Hastings, the faithful Irish cop who loves Flossie, is played with a maniacal grin, and shameless eye on the audience, by Isenberger.

Others in the cast, in lesser parts, do equally well and a special mention should be made of William Shepard's well played Albert Cooper, the much put upon victim of the villain's infamy.

As regulars of the First Theatre must know, the olio which follows the play is a co-equal part of the entertainment, and the current olio is a riot. There were signs of visible distress from overlaughing in this reviewer's section of the theatre, and special mention should be made of the Quackenbush Sisters, who throw a truly excellent soprano and alto around in a parody of the worst aspects of 19th century concert singing, complete with "gestures" of birds flying, things rising, things falling, and mirth reigning supreme.

should amuse everyone but those determined to resist, and perhaps the funniest of all acts is the skating comedy done by La Maye and Melvin Isenberger. If there is anything more ridiculous than an ungainly man hanging on a strap over a tank of ice, alternately pleased and distressed by his luck as an ice skater, we've yet to see it.

With audience songs, and a fine attitude of good nature, the evening is a more than pleasant one for the audience at the First Theatre. Largely this is due to the spirit of the players. A commendation to William Shepard for weeding out all pretension, and for directing his cast in such a way that they are perfectly willing to throw away lines for a laugh, a professional approach that less humorously minded amateur endeavors often overlook, to the detriment of the piece and the embarrassment of the audience. These people are good enough so that they worry neither themselves nor the audience by trying too hard. Their reward (and the audience's) is an excellent professional show.

..LocaLights..

Robert Emmet O'Brien is a remarkable Carmelite who has just returned from his fourth extensive exploration of the globe. Within the past 20 years he has packed and unpacked his bags a good deal. The first trip, a 35,000 mile trek, took him to Russia, Africa, and 23 other countries. In 1936, the Berlin Olympics proved a starting point for a trip that included a great deal more than international sports. In 1948, he spent six months in South America, and in 1950 visited Mexico for three months. His latest trip was a six month tour of Ireland, Scotland, England, France, Switzerland, Italy, Greece, and Turkey.

Born in Keokuk, Iowa, O'Brien was one of ten children who were born to the O'Brien household. His father had come to this country in 1855 on a sailing ship which took six weeks to make the voyage.

At sixteen O'Brien graduated from St. Peter's High School and a few months later was employed as a timekeeper at the munificent sum of $40 a month. He comments that those forty dollars were paid for "365 days, no vacations, no holidays, and no time clocks," though it was, in 1900, considered a good wage. He left this job to go to Business School, an educational gesture that cost him ten dollars a month, since when he returned to his job, conditions were worsened and he was lowered to $30 a month.

A partnership in the firm followed 11 years later, and then in 1918 the Cook-O'Brien Construction Co. was born in Kansas City. It was responsible for a good many miles of highway and railroad throughout the middle west, and a town in northern Texas was given the O'Brien family name as a recognition of his services to that area. In 1937 Mr. O'Brien "liberated myself from work." He came to Carmel in that year.

The 1931 trip to Russia supplied O'Brien with a first hand look at the country that was then, as now, a puzzling and controversial nation. His observations and notes made at that time show a remarkable prescience and observation. Always interested in the structural and social aspects of the nations he visited he commented frequently on the technological backwardness evident to the eyes of an American contractor. His memoirs of the Russian trip conclude (after an expression of relief upon reaching Polant), "I think they have a long road to travel and it will take them years to educate their people to a state of efficiency before they present any real economic competition to us. They idolize our industrial success, but of course our social system is all out of tune with their ideas."

In addition to seeing the world, he has a lively interest in photography and devotes much time to it. He was president of the Carmel Camera Club for several years, and was chairman of the Photography Department of Monterey County Fair for 1951 and is reappointed to serve this year.

A lively, perceptive interest in the world has led Mr. O'Brien across a good many miles, and his thoughtful, alert approach to these travels has made every mile profitable as well as pleasurable.

The next meeting is scheduled for Tuesday, March 18.

YOUTH CENTER HAS BUSY WEEK

Aside from its rehearsals for the April 25 and 26 follies which it plans, the Youth Center this week hosted a High School Block C dance for the benefit of the Injury Fund. Over 200 attended the dance, the proceeds of which will help to defray expenses of athletes who are injured in high school sports.

The Center also accepted, and fulfilled, a commission to collect the March of Dimes cannisters which had been placed in stores about town.

Thanks to the Carmel service club the Center has a vastly improved snack bar. New rubber mats, donated by the Rotary, Kiwanis, and Lions now adorn that area, and Jack Giles, director of the Center, says that the young people have expressed appreciation.

FAREWELL TEA GIVEN

A farewell tea was given by the Army Language School Women's Club for Mrs. Charles H. Barnwell Wednesday. She and her husband, Col. Barnwell, commandant of the school since 1947, are leaving soon for the Far East.

"CAPTAIN APPLEJACK" IN REHEARSAL

REHEARSING for the Carmel High School Senior Play to be presented on March 14 are (left) Frank Lanou as Ivan Borolsky, and Ann Spurr as Anna Valeska, and (right) Kurt von Meier as Captain Applejack. The play is under the direction of Mrs. Mariquita Brey.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnson were in Carmel for the weekend as guests of her mother, Mrs. Mabel Sampson.

CHURCH PLANS ST. PATRICK'S PARTY

A St. Patrick's Day party is being planned by Our Lady of Mt. Carmel Catholic Church for March 15. The party, which will be open to the public, will be held at Holman's Guest Ranch beginning at 8 p.m. Violini Brothers have donated a thoroughbred heifer which will be given away during the evening, and other prizes will be announced later.

Arts Ball-pageant

At right are seen Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Coe (Alma Walker McKeever), and Captain and Mrs. Jack Atkinson of Carmel. Almost all of the guests made a gesture toward costuming, whether it was a painted mustache, or a headscarf borrowed from their wives, and many of the costumes were elaborate.

WOMEN'S PEBBLE BEACH GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP MATCH

From March 5 thru 9, the the Pebble Beach Women's Golf Championship will be played at Pebble Beach.

Entrees may now be made, and should be addressed to Women's Tournament Committee, Del Monte Lodge, Pebble Beach, California. An entry fee of $5 is charged, and the rolls will be closed on March 3.

KRAMER - BUDGES BUDGE

In brilliant sunshine, Jack Kramer, the present world's champion, played Don Budge in a well patronized match at Pebble Beach Tennis courts last Sunday. The final score, 6-3, 3-6, 6-3 for Kramer, failed to register the overpowering superiority of Kramer over the able, but aging Budge.

A strategy duel, with lively net rushes, and a continual play on Kramer's backhand by Budge, provided the spectators with a good many laughs and exclamations. Though both players looked good, Budge appeared to let retrievable shots go, and showed a marked lack of power playing against one of tennis' strongest men.

BASKETBALL TOURNEY AT CARMEL HIGH SCHOOL

With Monterey, Gustine and Patterson the discussed favorites, CHS began a three day invitational basketball tournament yesterday. The play will continue today and tomorrow, at 4:30 today and at 6 tomorrow.

SCHOOLS STUDIED

Carmel schools again this week were the object of study. Earl Osborne, English teacher at Chaffee Union High School, was here to observe methods and techniques used in the Carmel classrooms.

Osborne was primarily interested in English classes and concentrated on those taught by Mrs. Mariquita Brey and Mrs. Frances Davis.

ARTICLE PUBLISHED

Orville C. Rogers, 7th grade teacher at Sunset School, has had his article "Let's Make Reading Fun" published in Elementary English, the organ of the National Council of Teachers of English.

Discussing children's reading habits, Rogers mentions that in many cases teachers are perhaps unfamiliar with children's classics, having forgot them and the world they create. He urges the encouragement of children to read for pleasure, not competitively or for reports. The comic book "menace" has nothing to offer but ease, and Rogers feels that the truly successful reading course is the one which teaches a child to look on reading as pleasure.

VISITING

Mrs. Jack Miller of Carmel will leave next weekend to visit the Tom McKnights of Los Angeles. She plans golf, more golf, and for a change--golfing.

Coming from Berkeley for the big Washington's birthday weekend were Dr. and Mrs. James Davidson of Berkeley. They brought themselves, and their dachshund Tina, to the William A. Smiths.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Van Reekum, who have made their home in Pebble Beach for a number of years, leave by air today for New York before departing for Holland for a prolonged stay in order to attend to Mr. Van Reekum's business in Europe.

Alicia Orcutt, Doris Evans, and Joan Carr will sail from New York March 7 on the S.S. Ryndam, going directly to Paris, where they will pick up a Hillman Minx for a trip thru Europe and Africa. Their plans include skiing in Austria, then thru Italy to Sicily across Africa to Algiers and Casa Blanca, and back thru Spain and the French Riviera, on up to Paris, England, and Scotland before returning to New York.

The three girls were friends at the University of Oregon at Eugene. Alicia Orcutt, daughter of Mrs. Charles Schultz, who divides her time between an apartment in San Francisco and her mother's Pebble Beach home, will travel to Baltimore on her return to this country to spend a month with her father's sisters, Elsie and Nellie Orcutt, in Baltimore.

ATOM KIDS AT WORK AT CARMEL HIGH SCHOOL

While pupils in other classes are awaiting first use of the display about two weeks hence, Richard and Reed work daily in a special advanced eighth grade science class, pursuing such projects as this. Started only last month as an educational experiment, the group has only one other pupil, Garth Winslow, who is delving into minerology. They are encouraged by their teacher, Miss Enid A. Larson, to work on scientific projects of their own choice and at their own speed.

"The model will add tremendously to instruction in chemistry and biology, because it will make clearer--visually--the complex structure of atoms," commented Miss Larson: "There is nothing like it on the market and it would cost $200 or $300 to order built."

Young Putnam, besides working with Dick, is perfecting an electric organ of his own design and construction. Some resourcefulness went into its creation, too, for he thought of borrowing several parts from his little sister's toy piano. Both lads chat in atomic argot as freely as most 'teen-agers discuss the intricacies of hotrod camshafts or the latest dance step. They've started with the atom and seem intent on going lots of places from there.

Lively reading is in store for anyone who picks up Show Biz by Abel Green and Joe Laurie, Jr. Green, who is the editor of Variety, the "bible" of show business, and Laurie, a well-known comedian, have traced the history of every imaginable phase of the entertainment field from grand opera to burlesque. The book is written in the crackling, original style which has long characterized Variety and Mr. Laurie's humor is an added fillip.

Robert J. Alexander deals with one of the most fascinating of today's political regimes in his new book, The Peron Era. Alexander, who is Assistant Professor of Economics at Rutgers University, has heretofore specialized in labor studies and he gives particular attention to the welfare of the workers today in Argentina who, in the name of social progress, have sacrificed virtually all their freedom. He warns that unless the United States reaches a more effective understanding of South America we will one day awake to find a united front of totalitarian military dictatorships to the south headed by Peron's Argentina.

The author of the fabulously successful Tales of the Pacific, has written a new book called The Voice of Asia, in which he endeavors to make us see "what makes Asia tick." Michener spent a great deal of time travelling through Asia and from his contacts with the great and small of various countries he extracts a meaningful picture of their side of the world struggle.

Alan Devoe's The Fascinating Animal World seeks to answer the many questions which arise in the minds of laymen regarding animals. Cast in a question and answer form, the book has line drawings and a complete index. If you've ever wondered whether fish sleep or whether any bird flies backwards, you'll find your answers here.

The eminent English author, E. M. Forster, who wrote A Passage to India, raises Two Cheers for Democracy which in his informed opinion does not rate three. While decrying the evils of intolerance and injustice which exist under present-day democracy, he yet sees hope that man's inhumanity to man will some day end.

There are two new books of highly personalized travel narrative. Margery Finn Brown, who went to Japan as an Army wife, gives an intimate picture of day-to-day life in Tokyo and Kyoto in her book, Over a Bamboo Fence. Patrick Leigh Fermor in The Traveller's Tree recounts a leisurely journey through the Caribbean Islands from Venezuela to the tip of Florida.

Of particular interest to women readers will be White House Profile by Bess Furman. In this book Mrs. Furman, who is a Washington news representative for the New York Times, has expanded a newspaper series which gives the social history of the White House and the festivities there. Her emphasis is on the wives of the presidents rather than on the presidents themselves.

Other new non-fiction includes Pioneer American Gardening compiled by Elvenia Slosson from material gathered by the garden clubs of 41 states, detailing the contribution made by each state to our national garden; There is a Right Job for Every Woman by Anne Heywood in which this job consultant offers advice in finding compatible, rewarding work; and The Christian in Philosophy by J. V. Langmead Casserly, a discussion of the relation of Christian thought to the progress of Western philosophy.

New fiction this week includes Tomorrow and Tomorrow by Lewis Padgett, and The Fabulous Wink by Ken Bennett.

PENINSULA WILDFLOWERS

John Thomas Howell, Botanist of the California Academy of Sciences, San Francisco, will be the guest speaker at Sunset Auditorium in Carmel, Tuesday evening, March 4, at 8 o'clock. "Wildflowers and Trees of the Central California Coastal Area" will be the topic of his talk. This will include especially the trees and wildflowers of the Monterey Peninsula area as far south as Big Sur. Beautiful kodachrome slides loaned for this lecture from the collection of the Sierra Club will be shown. Spring wildflowers just coming to bloom will be the center of interest.

John Thomas Howell is well known in the Bay Area for his talks on "Wildflowers within 100 Miles of San Francisco." He is the author of the recently published book on the plants of Marin County, and is now preparing an extensive account of the flowers of the Sierra. He was appointed to fill the position of Curator of Botany at the California Academy of Sciences upon the retirement of Miss Alice Eastwood.

The lecture is the second in the Popular Science Illustrated Lecture series now being offered by the Carmel Adult School. The public is cordially invited to attend. There is no admission charge.

The Amateur Gardener

GARDENING FOR HEALTH AND HAPPINESS

By Charles W. Delaney

At this season almost everything in the catalogue can be planted out in this area. It is impossible to give a complete listing of all the material that can be used. Your favorite nurseryman is willing to give advice on planting, the nature of growth of his plants, and where in the garden they will thrive best. I can only suggest timely duties and methods each week.

Do not buy too many plants in the beginning. Flowers should be treated as friends; you learn their peculiarities and habits by association. Each garden has its own problems as to the amount of sunshine, kind of soil, its fertility and drainage, and of course competition with threes, shrubs, and hedges. Most plants thrive best in full sunshine, others like shade or broken sunshine--such as fuschias, begonias, azaleas, camelias, to mention only a few. Most shade loving plants like an acid soil and not too much manure, whereas most of the sun plants thrive on manure. It is our wish to make gardening a pleasure and not a chore; it is health and happiness we are seeking.

PLANTING SUGGESTIONS

Try a few large flowering carnations. They do wonderfully in this area. Set out rooted plants in well drained beds in full sunshine. Work in a handful of bone meal and sprinkle in a little dehydrated lime. Pinch back the tip growth to make the plant bushy. A few 2 foot stakes are needed to support the growing plants. You will be delighted.

If you like beautiful white flowers, then plant some seed of the Hyacinth type Candytuft. They form large heads of perfectly white flowers and bloom late into Fall.

Perennials that have been in one spot for some time should be dug up and divided and set in a new location; then the new transplants will give a better showing. The perennials I refer to are phlox, any daisies, delphiniums, chrysanthemums, blue bells, gaillardia, geum, day lillies, and montbretia. The soil should have a generous amount of rotted manure and some bone-meal.

POTTED PLANTS

With potted plants, keep the soil moist but never soggy. Plants that have been in a pot for the past year should be replanted into a pot one size larger, using fresh soil with well rotted manure and bone-meal; also a little peat-moss will help hold moisture.

Pot grown geraniums may be pruned back to 12 inches. Shake off the old dirt and cut back the root system about one third. Keep them in a shaded place for a few days, then in full sun, and watch them grow. I find it advisable to set them a little deeper (about one inch). This encourages roots to form on the stem and makes a more thrifty plant, with more blooms.

CONTROLLING PESTS

Garden pests begin to multiply with the advent of Spring. Do not let this frighten you for they are easy to control if you use a spray of your preference. I like a spray tank which holds about 2 gallons of solution and has the pump in the top. The all-purpose combination I have used is Isotox, Rix, and Volcks oil. Use 6 tablespoonfuls of each to a gallon of water. Spray each plant thoroughly, reaching the underside of the leaves, the stalk, and around the roots. This will destroy aphis, thrips, scale, red spider, ants, ear-wigs, and others.

Snails, slugs, and sowbugs are killed by a poison bait. After sprinkling the soil, put out a few tablespoonfuls of Taps around plants, pots, and places where the leaves lie on the ground. At night they come out, eat the poison, and are destroyed. This poison is not eaten by pets.

During the dry season it is usually sufficient to spray every 7 to 10 days, and you can have your nurseryman do it for you once in a season. Much has been said and written about pests; but really it is not so difficult as it seems. To be sure it is a constant battle, yet nothing can be achieved without some effort, and a victory over them is very rewarding.

The pleasant exercise and the mental effort in gardening bring about a feeling of achievement and satisfaction that cannot be obtained from any other activity. The contact with the soil, the fragrance of flowers, and the warmth of the sun are only part of what is attained by this fine hobby.

WOMAN'S CLUB HEARS LECTURE ON TULIPS

Dressed in her native Dutch costume, Klasine Matilda Keessen entertained the Carmel Woman's Club last week with a lecture on "Tulips and other Bulbs." Colored motion pictures were shown of the different varieties.

Miss Keessen, a native of the largest horticultural center of Holland, received her diploma from the State Horticultural College at Aalsneer and had training at Columbia University in landscape architecture. She is a garden consultant and has written for American and Dutch magazines and newspapers.

Tea was in charge of Mrs. Sinclair McClellan, Mrs. George B. Baxter, Mrs. Della Williams, and Mrs. Ramona Gahl. Pouring at the tea table were Miss Sophie Burgdorff and Mrs. W. H. Jones, Jr.

The next open meeting on March 3 will feature a talk by Mr. Charles Evans on "One Man Theatre."

There's nothing just as good that's Cheaper!

It's a fact! Your travel dollar buys more comfort, more convenience, more luxury and more miles on modern streamliners than on any other form of transportation. Roundtrips in chair cars on any of the Southern Pacific "name" trains listed below cost only about 2¢ a mile or less.

Chair cars on Southern Pacific's modern streamliners have been built with your comfort the first consideration. Dust-free, draft-free air-conditioning. No-glare fluorescent lighting. Soft-as-a-cloud foam-rubber seats. Lots of leg room and move-around room. Extra large windows. Feather-touch doors. Spacious washrooms. That's why Chair Cars on S. P. streamliners are the most luxurious form of all low-cost transportation.

There's nothing as good as S.P. for freight shipments, too. We have more miles of line serving more Western cities and towns than any other railroad. For fast, efficient, dependable freight service—whether carload or l.c.l.—call our nearest agent.
